Instructions for use/application

Preferably wash with a full machine. Dose correctly depending on level of dirt and water hardness. Note that the use of extra detergent will not make the laundry cleaner and is harmful to the environment. Lower the temperature of normal washing programmes to protect the environment. If you are allergic to household dust, always wash bed linen at minimum 60°C. Regularly run a washing cycle at 60°C with a detergent that contains bleach (powdered detergent), and follow the machine manufacturer's recommendations for maintenance. Leave the machine open between each wash.
